IN MEMORIAM

1963-1980

Michelle Lessner

Kathleen Kelly

Do not stand at my grave and weep.
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow;
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain;
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the morning's hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight.
I am the soft star that shines at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry., I am not there.
I did not die.

DEDICATION

The Class of '81 has often had difficulties in agreeing on an issue, especially those issues concerning the yearbook. However, we hit the jackpot with our dedication. We have, as a class, chosen a person with all the traits necessary for the honor: sincerity, honesty, and a sense of responsibility. Many teachers, of course, share these qualities but our choice has a special quality that does not take merely intelligence or competence to acquire, but rather a true devotion to one's work.

In our choice for dedication, we've found a person with such devotion: a woman with the sincere desire to aid and improve her students. She has served as a Senior Advisor for our Class. By doing this, she lent her expertise and experience to decisions dealing with the important times in our lives such as Graduation and the Prom.

This woman was part of another portion of our lives at CHS that was not as happy. When tragedy was at hand, she served not only as an Advisor, but also as a friend. Unashamed to shed tears because of her willingness to show her emotions, she proved an important figure during this time. She was determined to proceed with dignity — and help others too, once the tragedy had passed.

Without a doubt, the Class of '81 has chosen a special person to receive the dedication of this yearbook. After all, the "capacity to care is what gives life its deepest meanings." This lady has given a lot of meaning to the Class of '81 as a whole and to many of its individuals. Our way of thanking you is simple. We would like to dedicate Tessahoc '81 to you,

Ms. Joan Tribeman

And the seasons they go 'round and 'round
And the painted ponies go up and down.
We're captive on the carousel of time.
We can't return, we can only look behind from where we came,
And go 'round and 'round and 'round in the circle game.

SENIORS

2001: A Spaced-Out Odyssey

The Tessahoe sailboat can sail through space and through time; it can see into the future as well as the past. Right now it's sailing discreetly through a cocktail party in the year 2001 — a reunion at the Greenhouse for the Class of '81.

At the door of the Greenhouse stand Jon Antoine and Consuelo Halloran, the Owners, who greet their old classmates with smiles and hearty "hellos." A group of professional football players — Sandy Ayer, Buddy Howorth, Mike Jones, Mark Froio, Mike Donahue, Dave Chapman, Jim Kelleher, and Bob Fessler — enter the Greenhouse with (coincidentally, of course) a group of ex-cheerleaders (Sandra Goodwin, Susan Goodwin, Donna Ige, Kim Ferreira, Suzie McCool, Donna Ladrigan, and June Robbins) following them. Billy Henry, the new owner of Brooks Brothers, is behind the cheerleaders talking to Jason Gill and Shawn Decruz about the latest in men's fashions. "Hurry up, we're late" says a voice behind them. It's Allison Whitley, a teacher at Cohasset High. "We'll miss the entertainment," she says.

The entertainment is just starting. Pat Duffy, Ken Ralff, Matt Packard, and Ed Booth are the warm up comics for the main act which is Peachy Latson and Claire Tinory singing one of their latest songs: "Made It To The Top." They have just landed on the roof in their private helicopter accompanied by the musicians for their group: John Muir, (guitar), Bob Blossom, (drum), and (back up vocal) Scott Fernald. Brooke Henderson, the pilot, follows them into the Greenhouse, greeting her friends on the way.

Jeff Lyons and Sal Cesario, dressed in their Blues Brothers costumes, make a grand entrance with their dates for the night: Jen Leptich and Koren Lipsett, co-owners of a new boutique in Boston. Connie Grant, seated at the bar, calls to them, "Hurry up; there aren't many seats left." Connie is presently the principal at CHS.

Almost the entire class is now in the Greenhouse — scattered throughout the Garden Room, the upstairs lounge, and the downstairs. Stu Cahill and Jeanne Donahue are the M.C.'s for the night, and they introduce "Ralff's Wrecks," the first act. By the way, Steve Winn still writes Ken's material, but, now is getting paid for it. Laughter resounds through the noisy bar, heard especially from Pam Johnson and Lindsey Gilmore, who are both social workers in Algeria. "It's not that funny," Tish Walls murmurs to her friend Laura Durkin sitting beside her.

Gretchen Westerhoff, Heather Petrowski, Sarah Roebuck, Carolyn Beamon, Lisa Thornton, and Gail Smart are just arriving at the reunion after having their car side-swiped by Eddie Lantz's new Jaguar. Bill Lynch, still working on his computer homework from 20 years ago, was also at the scene of the accident, and stayed to help out. The latecomers hurry in and find seats next to Barbie Gurnis (owner of a suntan lotion company) and Katie Smalzel (a translator of French Literature).

A table of ex-Olympic stars — Heidi Brown, Donna Chisholm, Hannah Clinton, Tara Diab, Kathy Andrews, and Ellen Di — is the rowdiest of all; they yell, "Encore! Encore!" after each applause. "Quiet down," Phil Dormitzer, CIA agent, tells them, and makes a note in his black book, under "Subversive Behavior."

The next act is announced, and Clair and Peachy strut out onto the stage, to the sound of cat calls and wolf whistles from Billy Kurtz, Mike O'Brien, Timmy Libby, and Greg Raffa. Billy Mack, owner of a trucking company, runs up to the singers and showers them with roses, while Billy Hollis yells: "On with the show!"

And what a show it is. Even Steve Saleski, a hard-headed businessman (working in a partnership with JoJo Whelan), manages to smile, and Kara Hanlon, usually sarcastic about Claire's talent, is on her feet applauding. Brenda Birmann, famous opera singer, joins in on the songs, and Cathy O'Brien pulls out a saxophone and jams with the band.

"This is great!" Jane Higgins, an artist in Paris, says to Alice Marsh. Alice nods, and continues her conversation with Jim Yeomans, who is a well-known concert pianist. Jim has already released three albums, one entitled: "My Years at CHS," which was co-produced with Chip Bliss and Teddy Durant.

The entertainment is now over, and Lisa Marchesi and Beth McAdams (who are now running a posh beauty salon on Newbury St.) rush over to hug Claire and Peachy. "Let's get a drink, girls," they say, and they all slide into the bar next to Lori Stobart and Anne Kearney, who are deep in conversation about the political situation in Afghanistan. Scott Garvey and Brian Cogill, who are bartenders for the evening, join in the conversation.

Suddenly a voice is heard yelling: "A toast! A toast!" It's Todd Langford, a soccer player for the Limey team in England. Shouts of "yeah," "all right," come from Matt Grinnell, Charlie Stockbridge, and Steve Taylor, all seated at Todd's table.

"But who will give the toast?" asks Robert Lindsey.

"Let Jerry give it!" cries Lauren Alemian, a successful businesswoman in Chicago. Jerry White, Secretary of State of the U.S. feigns modesty, but finally accepts the offer; he raises his glass and shouts: "To the class (thank God) voted for me for president three years in a row . . . to the class that is the greatest, the most wonderful . . ."

"O.K., good enough," Dean Brown interjects. Dean is currently traveling through the country collecting bottle caps for his collage entitled "Creations of the Natural Mind." He was inspired by Bonnie Wittemore's artwork that is on exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. (The Met., by the way, is now owned by Michael Morse).

Marilyn White, who still wears lead in her clogs, strikes up a conversation with Nancy Cone, owner of the Red Lion Inn.

"Restaurant owning must be a hard business," says Marilyn.

"You're telling me," Nancy moans. "And look at poor Caroline Bonnar, having to deal with those Log and Line customers every day."

True, Ms. Bonnar has her hands full, but at last she got professional architects (Chris Knight and Webster Roach) to design her new building, which is shaped like a coffee pot. Frequently seen at the Log and Line are Jim Carey, a banker in Cohasset, Pina DeVito, and English teacher at CHS, and Michael and Paul Buckley, both undercover detectives.

Leslie Potts, a hair stylist in L.A., yells for more toasts. "Let's see some action around here!" she screams. So Keith Ross and Greg Salerno break into a verse of the "Alma Mater," joined by Andy Shooshan, Bob Russell, and Richie O'Brien. Then, to make things even more rowdy, Jordan Hoy starts doing his stunt man falls down the stair case. (He works in Hollywood for Paramount Pictures). Mike Glasfeld is the next ham; he begins quoting Shakespeare and telling jokes at all of the tables.

The clock on the wall says five till twelve, so there's plenty of time left for fun and games. Buttons Wilson, always for a few laughs, brings out Twister, sets it up on the stage floor, and starts playing it with Kim Tillotson and Paula Bouknight. Mark Rattenbury and Gary Ormiston look on in amazement; they can't believe that grown women are doing this.

"Girls will be girls, I guess," laughs Scott Hurlburt, nudging Mike Polito beside him. Linda Travers laughs with them, and then goes join the game.

What a night! By this time Kathy Bursk and Jen Carroll are exhausted from gossiping so much — 20 years worth of stuff to catch up on! They take a break to listen to the conversation that Beth and Gail Hobson are having about their old times at CHS.

"Remember Flynn's Sociology class?" Beth says, laughing. "Remember the new tables we got in our senior year?"

"Yeah," Lisa Cohen interrupts, "Those tables were terrible colors."

"Not only that," agrees Ross Jordan. "But they were so weirdly shaped that you had to squeeze your tray on the make it fit."

Richard Conley, a featherweight champion for the U.S. boxing team, turns to Charlie Callahan and whispers: "Heather certainly looks good for her age." They both look over at Heather Correa, who is the owner of Narcissus Disco in Kenmore Square. She's sitting with her employees: Jeff Livingstone, the bartender, and Kirk Piepenbrink, the bouncer. Kirk is telling a story about an under-age girl who tried to get in Narcissus by pretending she was Norweigan.

"Hey, I did that once!" yells Caroline Wampole from across the room. Caroline has just finished a book entitled, The Loves of My Life, which is a bestseller in the Fiction department.

"Looks like the party's breaking up," observes Ann Marie Young from where she's sitting in the Garden Room with Betsy Laugelle and Billy DeCosta. Ann and Kevin Patrolia are already leaving and, behind them are Rebecca Osborne and Tina Fiori.

"Ah, don't leave yet," pleads Karen Crowley, who's just started to get rowdy. As manager of Eastern Horizons in Hanover Mall, she hardly has any free time; tonight she wants to have fun.

"Last call for drinks!" yells Joe Sestito from where he's sitting at the bar. A crowd of people surge to the bar and order their drinks, Tim O'Brien at the front of the line getting orange juice (he's in training for basketball).

Mark Wilkin, photographer for People magazine, is taking pictures right and left; he gets a good shot of Kay Failinger and Andrea Featherstone in their Powderpuff positions, and an even better one of Nori Murphy sliding down the banister and crashing into Liz Goggin. Unfortunately, Mark's camera is destroyed when Mike Neelon and Rich McMahon use it for a football.

Yes, the party is getting a little out of hand; hard to believe that these people are in their 30's! As Ken Davis remarks, "We look like a bunch of teen-agers," — indeed, the Class of '81 is showing its true spunk: spunk that will never go out of style.

The Greenhouse is almost empty now . . . people are still leaving: hugs, good-byes, etc . . . Mike Clark helps pick up the stray glasses from the floor, and Leslie Collins, a lighting technician in Boston, turns out the stage lights. "Time to go home," she says, and follows Mike out the door.

Everyone is gone now except for David Duncombe, who surveys the restaurant with a smile, thinking about the days of his youth. As he turns to leave he hears an almost inaudible voice, and there, on the beams of the ceiling, barely visible, sits a Skipper, ageless and wise in his blue and white costume. "Goodnight," the soft voice whispers, "Goodnight, Skippers."

POWDERPUFF

Is that your play, Coach Franey?

You're both wrong! It's Pam's Statue of Liberty play!

Not mine, Coach Di. Looks like one of Coach Walsh's.

Coordinated Much?

Hey Juniors, get Tara's flag . . . Not her shirt!

Go Andrea!

Hi there big boy (girl? boy?)

SENIORS #1

Nervous much?

Got-cha!

Spiderwoman (alius Ellen) Coaches Leary and Jones, crushed by the senior tidal wave, were "unavailable" to be photographed.

SENIOR CLASS PLAY
"DIRTY WORK IN HIGH PLACES"

It was a story of good . . . . . versus evil.

Gentle Grimes' dastardly plans took advantage of the helpless senior citizens and innocent children.

Widows Desperate and Aged decided to be "revolting."

Grimes had all kinds of student connections . . . . . and all kinds of employees.

What's Grimes up to this time?

Is that a new dance?

Ready for the stage!

Don't ask Mr. Emmons, he's only the director.

I don't know about this cast!
